ATTENTION BUDDING CHEFS: TEEN CULINARY ACADEMY IS CALLING YOU

If you're a teenager who enjoys cooking or is thinking about a career in the food service industry then the Teen's Culinary Academy, being offered by the City of Vacaville's Community Services Department, just might be for you.

Aimed at teens in grades 6 – 9 the first session, "Baker's 101," will begin a quarterly series of culinary classes led by Chefs Gus Alevras and Shirley Tytler at the McBride Center from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on March 10.

Teens enrolled in the academy will have "hands on" experience making bread using yeast and chemical leavening agents and participate in discussion about the action of leavening agents. A tasting of the day's efforts will be held at the conclusion of the class. The cost is $35 and includes all supplies and equipment. Space is limited and the last day to enroll is Friday, March 9, 2007. Interested individuals can register at any Community Center or visit the website www.cityofvacaville.com. Call 469-6674 for more program information.
